A Reflection From Our Pastor

Dear Brothers and Sisters

There are two women in today's Gospel, both are sick. One has been hemorrhaging for twelve years, the other is only twelve years old, and at the point of death.

One touches Jesus' garment and is healed. The other is touched by him and is raised from the dead.

These women are an allegory for our life.

We can bleed out in many ways. No blood transfusion will suffice unless the hemorrhaging is stemmed. No one can lose blood continuously without having it replenished.

The demands of the children; misunderstandings in marriage; the stress of a job, or the lack of a job; the fact of living alone, or the reality of having to live with other people; the demands of maintaining a household; or a large parish, the pressures placed upon us by family...

There are myriad ways in which we hemorrhage, that is, we feel life being drained out of us. There comes a point when there is nothing else to give. Demands can no longer be met, misunderstandings no longer forgiven, stress becomes all consuming, others can become unbearable...or solitude insufferable.

The Good News is that we are met by a person, Jesus Christ.

Our meeting with him occurs in one of two ways; either by means of our own faith, or through the faith and intercession of others.

The first woman in today's Gospel is healed because her own faith.

The other is healed by the faith of others.

One believes that Jesus can stem her flow of blood, that He is the only person able to help her. If she touches him, she believes, the demands of daily life will no longer suck the life out of her.

On the other hand, the little girl in today's Gospel can do nothing for herself, by the time Jesus gets to her she is already dead. It is only thanks to the intercession of others, in this case her father Jairus, that Jesus raises her to life.

Each of us has the opportunity to meet Jesus Christ today in the Liturgy today. No matter what we are going through, or how overwhelming life may seem, how impossible or demanding our life seems, we can call upon Him and be healed.

Others who are at Mass this weekend do not have the strength to do this; they rely on the help of others. That is why we have a community.

Call out to Christ, reach out to him, if you are able. If not, the Christian community is here to do it for you. Whether it is you who reach out and touch Christ in faith yourself, or you need to allow others to reach out to Him, may all of us - those of us bleeding out and those of us already spiritually dead - today leave here restored by Christ.
